Forecast for Saturday 08 Jul 2023

Weather: Mainly dry at first with bright or sunny spells, but quickly becoming cloudy with showers or longer spells of rain arriving from the south. These will remain across the Peak District through the day, becoming sometimes very heavy with thunder and possibly hail, gusty winds and frequent lightning, especially this afternoon and early evening. Late evening drier but still cloudy conditions will spread north.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 100% at first, dropping to 70% during heavy showers or rain.

Low cloud and visibility: Cloud should generally remain above the summits, perhaps shrouding higher peaks in heavy showers or rain. Visibility generally very good to start, but falling to poor in showers and rain with only near by hills visible.

Meteorologist's View

Blustery with strong winds likely over higher peaks first thing. Gusty conditions also likely in or close to heavy showers. Heavy downpours may also make for treacherous walking conditions. Moderate UV levels are forecast so carrying sun protection recommended for any sunny spells.
